A PARTING WORD

To the People of Truckee and Vicinity:

I came here to be the pastor of the Methodist Church five years ago and am leaving today for Sparks where we will make our home for the present and will be located at 1406 B St. I cannot boast of accomplishing much for the church and feel it is time to turn the work over to a worthy successor and trust he will succeed.

Through the good taste and help of my wife, we have succeeded in converting the parsonage into a comfortable home at a cost of $350 all paid. In February of this year we took out $4000 insurance on the property, paid to February 1938. The Ladies Aid have contributed $100 toward furnishing the parsonage and they have our grateful appreciation.

We wish to thank all those of Truckee, Hobart and Tahoe who have assisted us in any way and will carry with us only pleasant memories of our sojourn here. We will be happy to meet you should you come our way.

I congratulate the people, both Catholic and Protestant, upon the fine spirit existing between them and hope it will continue. I have enjoyed the fellowship of both Father Foran and Father Daley as I have many other priests whom I have known. May the spirit of tolerance continue to grow.

May God bless and keep you all.

Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Willis.

CUT IN COUNTY TAX RATE SEEN

Taxpayers Association Estimates Reduction of 1.2¢ In County Tax.

The California Taxpayers Association have recently issued a tax digest in which it is stated that if Nevada County officials plan to spend the same amount for the coming fiscal year as it did for the current year, taxpayers of the county can expect a reduction in the general county tax rate of $1.26, or a county tax rate of 94 cents, as compared with the rate of $2.20 per $100 of assessed valuation for 1934-1935.

The association further states that $6,509,025 of operative property will be added to the tax rolls of Nevada county. The county taxable valuation for 1934-35 was $6,396,185 based on an assessment ratio of 38.10 percent to true value.

"When the 50 per cent common valuation level is applied," the report reads, "this should result in an estimated equalized valuation for 1935-36 of $8,394,000. With the addition of operative property, the county should have a total taxable valuation for 1935-36 of about $14,903,000. On this valuation a 94 cent tax will yield as much for the county to spend as the $2.20 rate on a taxable valuation of $6,396,185 yielded in 1934-35. The true value of non-operative property in the county will not change materially in 1935-36 compared with 1934-35."

The study made by the taxpayers' association was on the general county tax rate, the only rate which applies uniformly to all property in the county.

With the return of operative property to the local tax rolls, something like $30,000,000 per year in new revenue has been made available to local governments, according to this report.

A drive is being made this week for contributions and all business establishments and fisherman are asked to make as large a donation as possible.

LIQUOR MUST BE STAMPED JULY 1ST

Fred B. Stewart, board of equalization member for this district, today said all stocks of hard liquor on the shelves of retail dealers must be stamped with the new state liquor tax stamps by July 1st.

Stamps will be available for distribution to retailers through various branches of the Bank of America by June 27th.

"Retailers," said Stewart, "should immediately thereafter get in touch with the Bank of America branch in their localities and purchase the necessary number of stamps.

"After July 1st, every retailer who has unstamped liquor in his possession will be violating the law and all such liquor will be subject to seizure."

The stamps will come in denominations ranging from 2 cents for the small, two-ounce bottles and 80 cents for bottles containing one gallon of hard liquor.

All deliveries of distilled spirits to retailers on or after July 1st, must be accompanied by a sufficient number of stamps to cover the bottles of liquor delivered. GOVERNOR'S ACTION FROWNED UPON

Governor Merriam's veto of the revenue bond bill evoked comment by California editors ranging from full approval to bitter denunciation.

While opponents of the measure lauded the chief executive's arguments as sensible reasoning, proponents were equally emphatic in criticising them as merely the views of the large power interests.

"The objection urged by the governor to the legislation said the Hanford Daily Sentinel, 'was the majority vote.' He believes two-thirds majority' should be required as the state constitution has always exacted. This prevents the non-property owner from encumbering private property with unnecessary indebtedness. It is the one stopcock on universal suffrage which is sometimes unrestrained in its eagerness to spend money too easily got. The man or woman of substance can have no complaint against the governor's course of safety first on this measure."

Another reason for the veto, termed the "most cogent" by the Visalia Times-Delta, "was that the bill made the debentures to be issued by these districts legal investments for savings banks, trust funds and public deposits, thus endangering both public and private money. Any public project that is not sound or useful enough to attract a two-thirds vote of the people affected in order to issue bonds, is not sound enough to be given the authority of law and made the security back of savings."

"One of the causes of our present troubles in governmental finance," remarked the Fullerton Daily News Tribune, is the freedom with which bonds have been issued in the past by various governmental units. To make bond issues easier by authorizing them on a majority vote would be to add to our burdens; for every bond issue means more taxes. It has been an established principal in practically every state that two-thirds vote must approve bond issues. To break down this principle, especially in a time when tax burdens have reached their apex, would be criminally foolish."

On the other hand, the Sacramento Bee regards the veto as 'a body blow to the Central Valley water project despite Merriam's repeated assertions of friendship for the plan. The governor professes to be greatly concerned over the outstanding debt of general obligation bonds of the state and its various political subdivisions. However, he ignors completely the fact revenue bonds are dissimilar in every way to general obligation bonds, since they are retired entirely out of the revenues of the publicly owned utilities financed by them and are not a lien against the taxpayer or his property."

And, in this connection, the San Francisco News points out, "federal—or any—financing of the Central Valley project depends upon assurance of a market for the power to be developed. And that in turn depends upon the ability of local communities to finance distributing systems so they can take advantage of the opportunity opened by the project to share in its benefits. Mr. Merriam's veto message reads like a rehash of the specious and downright lying propaganda with which the power companies fought the bill during its progress through the legislature, and with which they defeated a similar measure urged in San Francisco by the public utility commission."

WHAT TAXES PAY FOR

There is a vast amount of kicking about taxes these days and most of it is just. Our nation was born of a tax dispute and discontent and argument over taxes has always been an American prerogative. Sometimes, though, we overdo it even in these tax-oppressed days.

A statistician, figuring out that the average taxpayer in this country works one day a week for the tax-collectors, makes a fine story out of it. And nearly everyone takes a grim satisfaction in feeling sore about it. But if it's so, is it really so bad as everyone thinks?

What do we get for our taxes? Police protection. Fire protection. Schools. Streets and highways. Street lights. Sewers. Courts in which to maintain our rights. Government—local, state and national—and all its manifold activities and services without which our modern society could not function. National defense. And many other benefits. We might even say nationality and patriotism, because without the things our taxes pay for we could not be a civilized, organic nation.

Politically Speaking

SACRAMENTO, June 27—(UP)—Moving the legislature out of Sacramento was almost like taking away a big portion of the city's population and placing a "closed" sign on the capitol door.

The capitol building was not alone in showing effects of the exodus of legislators, lobbyists, attaches and their families. Hotels nearby were able to accomodate transient guests for the first time in months. Dining rooms, cabarets, restaurants, cocktail rooms and night clubs reported a big slump in business.

Corridors of the capitol building were almost deserted, and the sudden quiet was similar to that of a morgue. A few attaches labored to restore to order the jumble of bills that poured out of the legislature during the closing hours, and to complete preparation of final records.

Carpenters tore out the temporary electric voting system which had been installed in the assembly. A permanent system will be placed there before the 1937 session begins. Committee rooms were dark. Elevator operators were able to read their newspapers again.

Gov. Frank F. Merriam went to Los Angeles, saying he would not sign any real controversial bills until after July 4. He has until July 20 to sign some 700 that went down to him during the closing rush.

Few legislators stayed long after adjournment. They hurried home, or started on vacations to recover from the extraordinary period of long hours of work and play and few hours of sleep. Lobbyists folded up swiftly, many of them perfectly satisfied with the disposition of bills; others wondering what mistakes had caused certain measures to pass or be defeated.

Sacramento city officials estimated at least $1,000,000 was left in the city by the legislature and those connected with it.

Legislative work did not end for everyone. Hundreds of matters remained to be cleaned up. Interim committees must be appointed, and their members start work on special investigations of a score of subjects.

The secretary of state's office is busy recording bills and preparing for the special bond election August 13.

The civil service flareup was the highlight of the week after legislative adjournment. Nearly 500 state employes lost their jobs because they failed to pass examinations. Nearly 3,000 others were apprehensive, hoping they would retain their positions until August 20, when they may be blanketed into civil service as a result of the new act approved by the voters last November.

A senate committee will investigate the entire civil service setup, particularly charges of favoritism and politics, and report its findings at the next session.

Although nothing official has been said about it, there was evidence that heavy pressure was being brought on the governor's office by persons favoring and opposing certain bills, particularly the chain store tax and a measure which virtually would give Standard Oil exclusive rights to slant wells into a section of the Huntington Beach tideland oil pool.

Before signing these and other controversial bills before him, Merriam planned to give interested parties an opportunity to be heard.

Indemnity Payments on Condemned Cattle Increased

SACRAMENTO, June 27.—(UP)—Insreased indemnity payments to owners of cows found to have bovine tuberculosis have been allowed under new regulations adopted by federal and state departments of agriculture.

The new regulations allow a maximum payment of $25 per animal instead of the previous top of $20.

Dr. C. U. Duckworth, chief of the state division of animal industry, said that higher prices for beef, dairy cows and dairy products made the indemnity increase necessary. The $25 figure is the highest indemnity payment allowed under the Jones-Cannally bill. In addition to this allowance, dairymen will receive the full salvage value of their animals.

Housing programs, of which so much has been said, will never be completely successful until everybody has a house in which anybody else would be glad to live.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swanee

J. C. Lewis, Superintendent of Tahoe Fish Hatcheries, reports this week that 56,000 "pogy" eggs to date have been taken from the racks at Independence Lake, where an effort is being made to secure stock which will rehabilitate Lake Tahoe and it's tributaries with this famous species of sporting fish so plentiful in earlier days. He expects to secure thousand more during the present harvest, now in progress. Early in May this year Goeffry Rice, in charge at the racks, and his men had a difficult time saving the racks from the flood waters which threatened complete destruction to the project for this season. Mr. Lewis reports some good catches being made at Independence, although fishing generally has been spasmodic there. The first shipment of 18,000 fish was made last week to Echo Lake for Tamarack Lake. Mr. Lewis plans to make arrangements this week to ship steadily hereafter to local hatcheries, the planting in streams to continue regularly from now on.

FOR RENT: Grocery store and gas station with living quarters for man and wife. Apply Chambers Lodge, Lake Tahoe.

Bob Southers, who wintered at the Arizona Biltmore, is back at Tahoe for the season. He is making his stand this year at Bob Watson's corrals on the Truckee River across from Marshall's Inn. Twenty fine saddle horses are now in with a possible ten more to be added shortly.

Bob on Friday returned with friends, from an interesting but difficult trip to Diamond Crossing on Five Lakes Creek. He found an average depth of 10 feet of snow at Barker's Pass and all the way from 1 to 10 feet throughout the mountain region. Five Lakes around which the snow still averages 5 to 6 feet, are still frozen over and Five Lakes Creek still contains too much water for fishing, it being also swift and muddy. The upper end of Powder Horn Canyon is still full of snow and a big head of water, nearly equalling the velocity of Five Lakes, is running there. It will be July 1st of later, before any good fishing will be available in this region.

James Wilson another intrepid local fisherman, made a trek over the snow during the week-end to the regions above Emerald Bay. Dick's Lake is still frozen solid and is surrounded by from 6 to 7 feet of snow. Fontanella Lakes in the same region, are partly broken with plenty of snow still on the banks. It is still too cold for fly fishing here, the fish simply refusing to bite. While here Mr. Wilson came upon a rather unusual sight for this region whistling pigs digging diligently for choice roots at the water's edge.

At Eagle Lake and Creek prospects are more encouraging, this being the first lake of this group open. Fishing is good here, rainbow trout averaging from 6 to 10 inches in length and quite plentiful. There is still some snow surrounding the lake but the paths are bare with no difficulties to encounter.

Vellma Lakes are open but the water is extremely high as yet. Bait fishing is advisable as fish will raise part way to take a fly and then, uninterested, recede again. There is still a great deal of snow around these lakes, and it is believed it will be at least the middle of July before good fishing can be had in this region, as the lakes are high and the streams swift and muddy. Too much natural feed also still abounds.

Blackwood Creek, while settling some, has not to date lived up to expectations. Jim Wilson, Charles Swanson and Clifford Smith, all fishermen with good reputations left at 4 a. m. one morning last week to tackle this promising creek, but Swanson was the only one to even get a nibble, catching 2 8-inch rainbow trout, and they were only snared on a 150 foot line. No really remarkable catches have been reported to date, believed due to the swift, muddy condition of local streams.

Acording to Harry H. Dukes, Truckee River Watermaster, Lake Tahoe now stands slightly more than 9-inches above the established rim It has risen one hundredth of a foot daily during the past week and the heavy flow of snow water from swollen creeks and streams still continues unabated. The level now stands at 6223.77 with prospects of a much higher level before the thaw is over.

Many Tahoe residents will be saddened to learn of the death, some weeks ago, in Oakland of George F. Bush who spent each summer of the year with his wife in their cottage near Nelson Heights at Homewood. He was a kindly gentleman who leaves many friends here to mourn his passing.

The Tahoe Women's Club each last Thursday of the month throughout the summer will entertain at an afternoon of contract and auction bridge, prize awards to be given winners. A small charge will be asked, which will also include refreshments. Their next party will be held on Thursday, June 27th at 2:00 p. m. at the Women's Clubhouse in town.

The next regular P. T. A. meeting will be held July 3rd, the first Wednesday in the month, at 7:30 p. m. in the Tahoe Grammar Schoolhouse. All members are urged to be present as plans will be formulated at this time to raise money, through card parties and dances, with which to finish the erection of the new log clubhouse on the school grounds. Public apology is offered H. F. Droste who obligingly presented himself, ready to discourse upon the N. R. A. as previously requested on the first Wednesday in June, only to find that only Mrs. William Wathen appeared to attend the meeting. Such a breach of etiquette is regrettable, and regrets have been voiced universally.

Mrs. John Stevens returned on Friday from a week's sojourn in San Francisco, where she shopped and visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Debenedetti and daughters Joan and Lorraine of San Mateo, arrived on Saturday to occupy their summer home in the Sunnyside District for the season. James Kehoe of San Mateo, will remain indefinitely as their houseguest.

Enjoying a week's vacation at the Ench home in Tahoe Pines, are Mrs. L. Schaackey of Oakland and her nieces, Mary Louise and Jane Ench of Sacramento.

The many local friends of Governor Richard Kirman and family, will be concerned to learn that Dick Jr. has been confined for two weeks in St. Marys hospital in Reno, suffering from a serious throat infection. The Governor said on Sunday night that although his condition was still grave he was showing encouraging signs of improvement.

Miss Clair Kirman arrived on Saturday to supervise the opening of the Kirman home near Pomin's Resort for the summer season.

Mrs. Dale Stewart of Malad City, Idaho (nee Thelma Freeman of Brockway Vista) is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Freeman at Brockway for a week.

TAHOE THEATRE OPENS SATURDAY

On Saturday night the new Tahoe Theatre located at King's Beach near Brockway, Lake Tahoe will have its official opening under the management of V. C. Shattuck of the Sierra Theatre Circuit.

The theatre which was built by Joe King at a cost of $75,000 is one of the most modern in appointments of any theatre in Northern California. It has a seating capacity of 300 with a loge section in addition to the regular seating section Mr. King has a special loge section reserved for his private use with a seating capacity of fifteen.

The seats are of rust and green velour. The lighting fixtures are handmade and add to the attractiveness of the interior. A small stage with dressing rooms will offer facilities for plays to be presented during the season should the management so desire. R. C. A. Electric sound equipment has been installed and assures the patrons of the theatre excellent sound reproduction.

Mr. Shattuck, who has many years experience in managing theatres plans to present the latest and best pictures available. It has not yet been definitely decided just how often the theatre will open, although it is now contemplated that the theatre will be open each night if the patronage warrants.

Homewood Clubhouse opened it's doors to the public on Saturday night, a lively crowd gathering by 9:30 p. m. Bill Peterson and his boys were received very favorably. Miss Eleanor Derr, attractively gowned in Roosevelt blue, won the heart of the crowd with her crooning, as did Rene Modine. Mrs. Jost, despite her recent illness, was present to greet old friends and acquaintances. Homewood appears destined to become one of the lake's most favored rendezvous.

Mrs. Pearl Brown of Berkeley, mother of Mrs. Otto Darlin, is spending a week at the home of her daughter in Tahoe Pines.

H. T. Kenyon of Tahoe Pines leaves this week for Government Island near Alameda, where he has secured steady employment. He passed the civil service examination last April and was 15th on the list of appointees. He was to have managed the Richfield Oil Station just installed in Tahoe City.

Mass is now being held each Sunday at the Tahoe Catholic Church at 8:00 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. and also at Globin's Al Tahoe at 10:30 a. m. More than 200 persons attended late Mass on Sunday, many home owners and their families arriving at Tahoe for the summer over the week-end.

Another familiar figure again back is Tim Butler of the Tavern.

Anna Rae Oliver was hostess at a jolly birthday party at school on Wednesday, ice cream and cakes being served her little classmates.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Riley of Oakland enjoyed a week's visit at the lake, visiting while here the William Oliver's of Lake Forest.

On next Sunday evening a children's night will be featured at the Tahoe Women's Clubhouse at 8:00 p. m. Mrs. William Oliver is tutoring the children in a play and other numbers, and Mrs. Willis Hevel is chairman of the entertainment committee. All are invited. There is no admission charge.

Mrs. C. V. Melarkey and sons David and Jim spent the week at their Elkspoint summer home here, returning to their Reno residence on Monday.

Congratulations are in order at the Tom Pierce home in Tahoe City. A 7¼ pound son, named Charles Clayton, arrived on Saturday morning. Both mother and infant are progressing nicely.

A. R. Westphal and Clifford Smith will spend several days in San Francisco, returning the end of the week with houseguests.

Mrs. Alice Bullion and son Harry spent several days last week at their summer home here, returning to San Anselmo on Saturday.

Si Bell was arrested on Saturday night for alleged assault while intoxicated by Constable Henry Wehrman. He was released on Sunday on bail and trail was held on Wednesday.

Alabama Inn on Top o' the World will open it's portals to the public of vacation land next Saturday night at 6 p. m. Unlike any other resort on the lake this new playground offers the guest a birdseye view of Emerald Bay in it's delicate gem like setting, along with delectable food of peerless quality. those colored masters of syncopated rhythm will fill in the musical interludes throughout the evening, and will have the distinction of being the only orchestra of it's kind on the lake. Dancing will be enjoyed during the evening.

Irene and Carl, renowned colored chefs, will be in charge of the preparation of the food and if you haven't already heard of their fame in Hollywood and Palm Springs, you will believe the autographs of movieland's famous ones, taken at random from Irene's bulky album, after your very first meal at Alabama Inn. Says Bill Hay announcer for Amos and Andy, "When better food is cooked, Irene will cook it." Lou Holtz sums up her and her husband's culinary prowess in a few potent words, "To Irene and Carl—The Roosevelts of Food." Funny Joe E. Brown is even willing to face the Great Beyond in serenity with the prospects of one of her pies accompanying him, says he, "To Irene—When I die put one of your apple pies on my grave and I know I will rest in peace."

Two charming blonde lassies with soft southern accents from Alabama University, will have charge of the table service.

The building itself, entirely remodeled, with plate glass windows on three sides to allow an unobstructed view of Tahoe's "top of the world beauties," has been under the personal supervision of an interior decorator from W. and J. Sloans in San Francisco. Lemon yellow cielings are enhanced by Japanese red rafters while gleaming black linoleum lends an artful, dignified balance.

The cocktail room, newly added, lends a cheery note in all white enamel, with white, hand wrought iron chairs and divans, cushioned with bright red leather and nests of all glass coffee tables grouped about conveniently.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Heitmann, gracious hosts, and managing owners, pride themselves upon setting a table of unsurpassed quality. Their steaks, special Davis cut tenderloins, come direct from New York City by plane, and are charcoal broiled to your taste while you wait. Huggins Young matchless blend of Mocha and Java adds a supreme touch to a perfect meal. A special Alabama cocktail will be served on opening night complimentary, with each meal. YOU ALWAYS GET BETTER QUALITY AT NO HIGHER PRICE WHEN YOU BUY A FIRESTONE TIRE WITH FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE

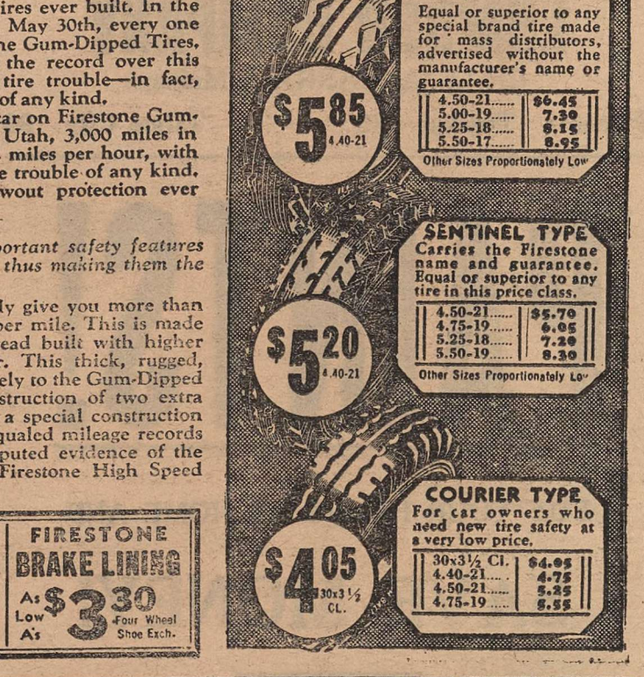
TIRES may look alike on the outside, but on the inside where blowouts start, they are different. Firestone Tires are made blowout-proof by Gum-Dipping, a patented extra process which soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. In fact, every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight additional pounds of liquid rubber. This special process prevents internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped, yet you pay no more for Firestone blowout-proof protection than you are asked to pay for tires built without this patented safety construction feature.

The make of tires you buy for your car becomes a matter of vital importance when you realize that there were 882,000 automobile accidents in 1934 injuring 954,000 people and killing 36,000 and that 43,000 of these accidents were caused by blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Firestone High Speed Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for safety, speed, mileage and endurance. These records emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof but give greatest protection against skidding.



The MASTERPIECE OF TIRE CONSTRUCTION
1 University tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop cars 15 to 25% quicker.
2 Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.
3 Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Kelly Petillo won the race and broke the record over this 26-year-old rough brick track without tire trouble—in fact, not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles in 23½ hours, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. This is made possible by the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This thick, rugged, scientifically designed tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread. This is a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

CHAPTER 4

"You have your creed, Javert; I have mine. As mayor, I refuse to accept your resignation. I order you to think it over."

Javert bows to authority.

"You are too lenient, M. Madeleine, but I will do as you say."

Jean moves to the door with him and stops.

"When and where is this Jean Valjean to be tried?"

"Arras, Monday."

"Tomorrow? There is no doubt about the case?"

"None. Everything is clear—he will be convicted. Goodnight, sir."

Fight and Flight

Jean has to make up his mind whether he will save Champmathieu or not. As he stares, he instinctively feels the iron collar round his neck—it galls him. He feels the chain is on his foot. The cunning, crafty look comes back into his face Why should he give it all up? In a moment of hysterical rage he cries out:

"Toussaint! Cancel the carriage; I'm not going."

As he comes to this decision his eyes light upon the bishop's candlesticks. The sight of them brings him up short. He stares at them fascinated. The cunning look fades.

"No. I go to Arras at once."

The court is filled to capacity, but Jean is ushered to a place behind the magistrate's chair. The old convict, Champmathieu, is standing between two gedarmes. The only similarity between him and Jean is in the build, and with his rough beard and hair he has the same expression Jean bore while in the galleys. There is no resemblance in features.

The unfortunate, half-stupid defendant is saddled with all the evidence piled up against Jean Valjean. Brevet, Chenildieu, Cochepaille, Jean's companions of the galley, all too readily identify him.

"You all know me? You recognize me? Good I say good, splendid, ha, ha! All right, send me back to prison. You might as well, for all the chance they ever give you. If that's justice, send me back, I say! Send me back!"

The helpless agony of the man is too much for Jean. He comes to a conclusion, and as Champmathieu concludes his hysterical outburst he leaps to his feet.

"Brevet! Chenildieu! Chochepaille! Look this way!"

All eyes in the court turn to Jean, standing among the privileged spectators. Jean walks across the court to the witnesses, turns and speaks to the court as a whole.

"I Am Jean Valjean"

"Sir, I apologize, I beg your attention, a great injustice, the witnesses are mistaken, this is not the man, I am Jean Valjean!"

The announcement makes a sensation. The counsel looks up at the judges.

"But it's M. Madeleine, isn't it?"

"Everybody knows him, he must be ill."

"You think I'm mad, gentlemen? My mind is clear, very clear. Look, I'll show you—

"Brevet! You had number 13 place. You paid the warder ten francs to change it to number 12".

Brevet looks at him in amazement

"Chenildieu, your left shoulder is burned. You tried to efface the marks of the branding iron."

"Chochepaille, your right arm, a date in blue letters put on with burnt powder. Lift up your sleeve!"

Cochepaille does so and shows the mark.

"But M. Madeleine," interrupts the judge.

"There is no M. Madeleine. There is only Jean Valjean. The law has a case against me. I shall be ready. You know where I am to be found."

But Jean never expects them to find him. His one thought is to lose himself to the authorities again as quickly as possible. He goes to the hospital to leave money with Fantine to take care of herself and Cosette. Javert arrives on his heels. He is no longer the humble, deferential person. This man, M. Madeleine, humiliated him before.

Fantine falls back in a fit of coughing in her excitement.

"Jean Valjean, I arrest you by order of the court. We want the saintly M. Madeleine, the forgiving Christian. Yes, you could afford to be lenient, couldn't you? You could afford to let me crawl to you and to forgive me. How beautifully you did it! Didn't you laugh to yourself afterwards, laugh heartily at that fool, Javert, cringing to you—because all the time you knew I was right, 'M. Madeleine', 'Jean Valjean', convict!"

The shock is too much for the fast tiring Fantine. With a faint cry, "Cosette! Cosette!" she falls back on the pillow—dead.

Jean moves slowly to Javert, his anger mounting.

"You did it! Your very presence killed her. So? Cosette shall go to an institution, eh? It's the law, is it? But there's an old law, older than ours—"

Then the whole of his restraint gives way and with something of the strength and fury of the man of the galleys he seizes Javert by the throat and hurls him across the room with terrific force against the wall. Javert drops to the floor, insensible.

Jean and Cosette are standing at the doorway of the Convent Petit St. Jean, outside of Paris. The mother superior is reading a note Jean himself has penned:

"This will introduce my good friend, M. Duval, and his daughter Cosette—" It is signed M. Madeleine.

"M. Madeleine has always been most generous to us," says the nun. "His last bequest came as a godsend. He asks us to look after your little girl and give you a position as gardener here."

"Is that possible?" quires Jean anxiously.

"We'll do anything for M. Madeleine; and in helping you we shall feel that in some way we are repaying him for his goodness to us."

Five Cloistered Years

For five peaceful years the cloister walls of the convent served as a kindly shield and haven from the law. Jean's surprise for Cosette upon graduation is a dignified but modest house near the Bois, in Paris. She is seen quite constantly in the company of young Marius, leader of the Students' Society for Law Reform, which is literally snowing under the French capital with literature decrying the present penal laws and unjust, inhuman punishment—a cause that strikes home with Jean. Cosette and Marius are rapidly falling in love.

Javert again appears on the scene. This time he is shadowing several of the young revolutionists, Marius among them, in an attempt to get to a possible "higher-up" who is supplying funds to the reform society. His trail leads him unknowingly to Jean's house. But Jean had caught a glimpse of him through the garden fence, and, realizing Javert has recognized him, and sensing trouble, slips out the back way with Cosette as Javert hammers frantically at the front door.

It is Javert who comes to the door when Marius arrives to speak to Jean of his love for Cosette.

"Nobody's here!" is Javert's curt greeting.

"But didn't they leave any word for me?"

"They left no message—for anybody."

"Have you an address?"

"Not yet" (grimly).

"But I must find them—my name is—"

"I know your name and I know your address, and if you know what's good for you, you'll get along."

Marius, after a look, turns and goes. Javert puts a gendarme on his trail.

Christian Science

"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." These words from Revelation comprised the Golden Text used Sunday, June 23, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mas.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon was "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" Included among the Scriptural selections was: "Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect: yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought: but we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory:" (I Corinthians 2: 6, 7).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, was also included: "Eternal things (verities) are God's thoughts as they exist in the spiritual realm of the real. Temporal things are the thoughts of mortals and are the unreal, being the opposite of the real or the spiritual and eternal" (p. 337).

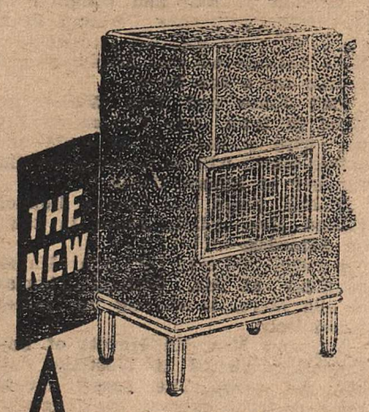
CLEAN CONVENIENT HEALTHFUL HEAT



AMERICAN OIL BURNING HEATER

● With this new, up-to-date heater you have no wood or coal to lug in—no dirt and ashes to shovel out. It operates automatically, giving you full heating comfort, even in the coldest weather. The construction is the most efficient known. Giant size heating surfaces and long fire travel extract more heat before the hot gases reach the chimney. That gives increased comfort and saves fuel for you.

● To appreciate the beauty of this heater, you must see it. Beautiful baked-on crystalline enamel with gleaming chromium trimmings make this heating appliance a real pride in any home. Why not come in at your first opportunity to look it over? We have other sizes and models, too, at prices that are right.
